

Keith Hughes for Eden-Monaro

If you're just leaving school this year, in higher education now or in your first job, or even pushing thirty, I'm talking to you. I'm Keith Hughes from Greens, and I'm standing in Parliament for Eden-Monaro. This is part of my electorate; the Snowy Mountains. Take a good look at this. Unless we do something serious about global warming now, it won't be like this for much longer. By the time your kids are getting their first job, it could be gone.

This election is your chance to tell the major political parties you want something done. Of course, if you want to save the planet and see an improvement in education, job opportunities for young people in remote, rural and regional areas and if you want to make sure young people living away from big cities don't miss out on health, housing and transport services that others take for granted, then why don't you vote for the Greens, for me that is.
